Samah Gayed, a native Italian speaker, was born in Alexandria, Egypt, to Egyptian Coptic parents, and grew up between Italy and Switzerland, where she completed three university degrees.

In the Canton of Ticino, she founded an Egyptian dance school and subsequently the OneDance project, in which gyrating dance becomes a message of peace and unity among peoples.

After 47 years living in Europe and a lifetime of travel around the world—from South Africa to Lapland, from India to Hawaii—a profound inner calling led her to the oasis of Siwa, where she chose to put down roots.
